General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

Paper 1
Section A AO2
Reading

All students should be required to demonstrate an ability to:
 (i) read and understand texts with insight and engagement
 (ii) develop and sustain interpretations of writers' ideas and perspectives
 (iii) understand and make some evaluation of how writers use linguistic and structural devices to achieve their effects

4	Examiners should refer to the following bullet points and then to the table to reach an overall judgement. There are many features in the passage that are worthy of comment. Examiners must reward all valid points that show an engagement with the text and an appreciation of the writer's technique rather than have a set agenda of items that they are looking for. Examiners must reward all valid points that address the question and show a clear grasp of the writer's technique. Candidates may refer to some of the following points: How Larwood is described: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Larwood is initially presented as old, with the focus on his white hair and his wrinkled face</li> <li>• his shirt is pale, suggesting something faded and washed out, and his jacket is too big suggesting that he once had a better physique which age has robbed him of</li> <li>• his continuing to wear the outsized clothing may suggest frugality on his part, or a feature of his age, failing to recognise the change in his body or even an unwillingness to accept it</li> <li>• the jacket is dull, symbolising his own lack of physical sharpness</li> <li>• the woollen tie suggests he is formal and proper, perhaps also old fashioned. The material suggests his simple working class roots</li> <li>• emotive language is used to describe his posture – he has “dignity” and is like a “war veteran” – both of which inspire respect</li> <li>• his upright posture is juxtaposed with the “stooped” and “flabby” men who surround him</li> <li>• they lack his formality and tidiness as they are in braces and short sleeves</li> <li>• Larwood's farewells add to our sense of him as an honourable and formal old man, in the manner that he shakes hands and “politely” says goodbyes</li> <li>• his exit is quiet and understated, lacking any drama as he “slowly climbs the stairs” and</li> </ul>	12

	6:00pm in the evening" <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• use of dialogue, "Here you are, son", used to enliven a simple scene. Larwood's use of the word "son" suggests the age difference between the two but also suggests that Larwood is kind, almost fatherly in the gentle manner he throws the ball back. It is informal, undercutting the earlier hero worship that we had witnessed</li> <li>• language of extremes used - "the last ball he ever bowled", done to create a sense of momentousness about the simple occasion</li> <li>• a dependent clause, "If" used for Larwood's legendary status and also used to strongly connect the writer and Larwood with their shared home town</li> <li>• use of compound sentence to emphasise the age of the cricketer through his simple, mundane actions, "He stroked his chin, readjusted his spectacles on the bridge of his nose and occasionally ran his fingers across his bristly head"</li> <li>• the writer's final depiction of Larwood begins to move him out of the physical world, suggesting that he may be living in the past and is meeting with the ghosts of former colleagues</li> <li>• the final description of him as a "Great Man", capitalised and in speech marks, moves him into the realm of legend beyond the very real, physical man that we have seen in the rest of the passage</li> <li>• the passage ends with repetition of the idea of greatness.</li> </ul>

My leg!"</li> <li>• Joe uses ellipsis to mirror his fractured thought process and to create tension</li> <li>• use of direct speech for immediacy</li> <li>• use of present tense for immediacy</li> <li>• use of rhetorical questions, "Left here?", "Alone?"</li> <li>• Joe uses a variety of sentences: short, simple sentences followed by complex – lines 40-42</li> <li>• use of modal verbs to speculate about a possible bleak future, "I would never get over it. Simon would not be able"</li> <li>• initially Joe lacks clarity and he fails to connect the distorted leg with the searing pain in the groin</li> <li>• later, Joe's clarity of thought belies the enormity of the statements made, "Simon would be ripped off the mountain. He couldn't hold me." This prepares us for the directness of Simon's account</li> <li>• Joe's writing has a deliberate emotional sense of</li> </ul>	10

	loneliness as he realises that Simon will have to leave him there <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Joe's writing exhibits a growing sense of panic, barely repressed</li> <li>• Simon explicitly states that his "immediate thought came without any emotion", as a direct contrast to Joe</li> <li>• Joe recognises his situation, but Simon is more able to articulate it</li> <li>• Simon uses a form of triple repetition to emphasise his clarity of thought and his understanding of the situation – "You've had it ...You're dead ...No two ways about it"</li> <li>• despite the fact that Joe's injury might evoke a sympathetic response, Simon's response is either lacking in strong emotion or is unkind "He looked pathetic"</li> <li>• Simon's use of slang oddly juxtaposes the informal and friendly with the cold calculation that indicates Joe's impending death, "You've had it, matey"</li> <li>• use of the word "dispassionately" sums up Simon's response</li> <li>• Simon's language displays a cold, hard logic that Joe would die and Simon would survive as is seen through his use of connectives</li> <li>• Simon selfishly wishes that Joe would fall to his death</li> <li>• the passage finishes with a series of short, simple sentences of dispassionate logic, and use of the modal "I could get down. If I tried to get him down I might die with him".</li> </ul>
